PREFACE

In compiling this work, the original aim was to record all known available information on the Davis family, but as more and more material was furnished by, and concerning, families closely related, it was decided to include all such families on whom enough material was available.

Traveling about the United States during and after World War II, the Compiler found himself in places where his forebears had lived and worked. Wanting to know more about them and their way of life, he began to make inquiries of relatives, who for the most part, were generous in supplying any information they possessed.

In reading the records of the families included here, one soon notes the continued evidence of respectability and integrity. True, no figures of national or international prominence are to be found here, but rather a representative cross-section of average American families whose members have contributed to the fields of pioneering, education, engineering, transportation, arts, crafts, communication, farming, labor, chemistry, the clergy and many others. The "melting pot" tradition of America will also be noted in this record as the reader comes across the families of German, Austrian, Swedish, Czechoslovakian and Brazilian ancestry.

That the obligation to home, community and country have been well met is shown by their active participation in civic enterprises, church work, school activities and youth organizations, as well as their records of military service.

As a history of a family is constantly growing, rather than static, it is to be expected that many who read this record will have information to add. For this reason, the Compiler has included a number of blank pages at the end of the book, to be used by each reader in keeping his record up-to-date.

The Compiler has also included all available addresses of the family members, in hope that this may encourage a more active correspondence between many who have lost touch with each other through the years.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Without the help of the many contributors it would have been impossible to prepare this book. All contributors can not be mentioned here as it would require several pages, however the Compiler wishes to express his appreciation to all who have contributed and in particular to Mr. Elmer H. Cook, President, Fort Smith Junior College and Mr. Roy Putnam, 2205 Midland Street; both of Fort Smith, Arkansas and whom were instrumental in assisting him in locating the descendants of William T. Davis (D8). To Alex Davis (D14) and Allie S. (Davis) Vinson (D13), I wish to express my thanks for their tolerance of my continued questioning, and Zoe Davis (D40), who checked records at Bloomer, Arkansas and furnished much of the information concerning George W. (D1) and Margaret E. Davis. And to my Mother, Anna May (Lovejoy) Davis who has furnished much of the information toward the completion of this record. Also Sula F. (Davis) Sands (D23) who furnished the photograph of her father, mother and sister.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

Since it was not possible to secure enough information at this time to warrant a book of the Davis family alone, and in order to make this record one of personal interest to more people, the Compiler decided to include information on families connected by marriage to the Davis family in any case where enough information was available to justify its inclusion.

Every effort has been made to eliminate errors and it is the hope of the Compiler that none will be found, although this is hardly likely in a work of this kind, however, if any do appear they are unintentional. Where conflicting dates or spelling of names were found, both are shown and where of importance the source of each is indicated. Since the information has come from numerous sources the Compiler assumes no responsibility for its accuracy.

Each direct descendant of the included families has been designated by a figure with a prefix letter or letters, such as, D1. George Washington Davis. The figure immediately following a name and slightly above, i. e., ², indicates the generation of that person, in relation to the first person named in that family. Where a plus (+) appears before the designation letter and figure, minimum information concerning this person is shown, and his complete record will appear in order in the following generation. Daughters' names are not carried forward to the next generation as they no longer have the family name. Information concerning a daughter who has married into one of the included families appears with that of her husband.

In the index the page number following the name indicates the page on which the name first appears as a part of the text and not as a reference. Each woman is listed under her maiden name as well as her married name with her maiden name in parenthesis. The index does not include persons who have contributed to this record or other persons in the text unless they are one of the included families.

Chapter I through VI include the Davis family by generations. Other family names include all of the available information for all generations in one chapter.

Abbreviations used in this record are as follows:

b. = born
d. = died
m. = married
m.(1) = married first
m.(2) = married second
acc. = according
div. = divorced
s. = son
dau. = daughter
grad. = graduated

DAVIS GENEALOGY

FIRST GENERATION

D1. GEORGE WASHINGTON DAVIS¹, b. Tennessee, August 25, 1828; d. Bloomer, Arkansas, October 10, 1888; m.(1), Jane , b. Tennessee, 1831 or 1832; d. Bloomer, Arkansas, between 1856 and 1859; m.(2), Margaret (Martha) E. Whitson, b. Arkansas, September 21, 1839; d. Bloomer, Arkansas, March 19, 1887. From the records that the Compiler has examined , which have included the Census Records in the National Archives in Washington, D. C., and correspondence with members of the Davis family as well as others, the following is written:

George and Jane came to Arkansas from Tennessee, whether together or not could not be determined, but the 1850 Census Record for Crawford County, Arkansas, shows that Jane was the owner of their property and they had one child; George, age one year and another child living with them; John, age ten. (Alex (D14), recalls his father having an "Uncle John"). It is assumed that the John living with George and Jane in 1850 was George's brother. It is interesting to note that the next listing in the 1850 Census Record (listing 27) showed a Robert Davis, age 16, b. Tennessee, and living with the families of George N. Morrow and Robert Donaldson but it has not been possible to connect this Robert Davis with George or John. In 1860 George is listed as a farmer with real property valued at $800.00 and personal property at $250.00 and Margaret as his wife, and two children, Thomas, age 7, and Thadus, age 2. In the 1870 Census George is listed as a farmer with real property valued at $1080.00 and personal property at $1385.00 and Margaret as his wife and they list three children; Thomas, age 16, Charles, age 9, and Doctor, age 3. Charles is listed as attending school and

Dear Mr. Davis:

This is in reply to your communication of 4 December 1953, with returned.

The records show that George H. Davis, rank not shown, served Pulaski Lancers, Arkansas Militia, Confederate States Army. His appears only on an undated "Pay Roll of Pulaski Lancers, dismount Ark. Militia, Capt. T. J. Churchill, in the expedition to Fort Se under Col. Borland," which shows period of service: "Commenced Apr. 21, 1861 expiration 30 April 1861." The date of place of b

The records of the Confederate States Army are of a strictly tary character and rarely show any items of personal or family in and in the case of the above named soldier, no mention is made of
of his relatives.

Sincerely yours,

all of the family except Doctor as being able to read and write. The 1880 Census lists G. W., age 51, farmer; Margaret, wife, age 40; William T., son, age 13; Nettie L., dau., age 10; and Susie E. (Sulie E.), age 8. All were listed as being able to read and write. All of the above Census Records are for: Bloomer Post Office, Big Creek, Township, Sebastian County, Arkansas, except the 1850 which is for Bloomer Post Office, Big Creek Township, Crawford County, Arkansas as Sebastian County was taken out of Crawford County in 1854.

George served in the Civil War as a Private in Churchill's "Pulaski Lancers" as indicated in the photographic copy of correspondence from the ARKANSAS HISTORICAL COMMISSION and the DEPARTMENT OF THE ARMY, OFFICE OF THE ADJUTANT GENERAL. Acc. to Allie (D13), George was injured in the Civil War and was partially crippled for the rest of his life but the Compiler has not been able to find any record that he received a pension, either from the State of Arkansas or the United States Government. From the period of service of only nine days it would seem plausible that he was injured.

George lived about a mile or two south of Bloomer in a large two story brick house on a small creek surrounded by a grove of trees. This was the only brick home anywhere in the county. It was a very beautiful farm estate for those days. Acc. to Zoe (D40), in our language today, he and his family lived in an exclusive country estate.

Acc. to Claude's (D22) mother-in-law, Mrs. Saria Jane White, as a little girl of about five years old she played with Sulie E. and Nettie Lee. She made numerous visits to the Davis home. Later the girls went to school together, and she recalls Sulie's death at the age of ten. Margaret was a very beautiful lady, tall and very neat. George was known to everyone, young and old, as Grandpa Davis. George and Margaret were very religious and they attended a community church a few miles from their home every Sunday. This church was non-denominational. They went to church in a wagon, there being no automobiles in those days.

George sold the brick home and moved to another community where he later died. A few years after his death the brick house collapsed. All that Claude can remember seeing of it is the old open well in the grove of trees on this little creek.

George and Jane had three children.

SECOND GENERATION

D3. THOMAS JEFFERSON², s. of George W. (D1), b. Bloomer, Arkansas, March 7, 1854; d. Corpus Christi, Texas, April 12, 1932; m. (1), Kimball, Texas, December 8, 1875, Susan Winifred Horn (H2), Chapter VII; m. (2), Bowie, Texas, January 26, 1922, Louise Spriegel, wid. of Robert Lovely Spriegel. Thomas was the only child of George W. by his first wife who grew to adulthood. His mother died a few years after his birth. He left home at the age of nineteen and rode horseback from Bloomer (near Ft. Smith) Arkansas to Bell County, Texas, which was quite a feat for a young man even in those days. In Bell County he was offered a league of land or $8.00 a month and board for a years work cutting rails to fence a farm. He decided on the $8.00 a month as he did not think the land was worth anything. He later moved to Kimball where he and Susan met and were married. They lived for some time in Bloomer, Arkansas shortly after their marriage and one or two of their children were born there. They returned to Kopperl, Texas and settled on a farm where all but two or three of their children were born.

Susan and her two sisters came to Texas after their parents' death in Alabama, with an uncle by the name of Wash Wicker. There was property in Alabama that was sold, apparently, after their parents' death and Mr. Wicker brought the girls to Texas. They first settled in Wichita County near the town of Charlie. They left the valley there due to floods that ruined their belongings, and they moved to Kimball. An old Negro "Mammy", who reared the girls and was their father's slave, came to Texas with them. She lived with Thomas and Susan when they were first married, and died shortly before Alex's birth. Susan's uncle, Jim Boswell, came to Texas in the late 1880's. Uncle Jim's wife had died before he came to Texas from Alabama and he brought three daughters and four sons with him. They were Mattie, Nannie, Lillian, Charles, Bell, Add and Haris. Mattie m. Joe Claybrook and Alex (D14) believes that their children still live in Bosque County. Nannie m. Clark Oldham and their children are believed to be living in Houston, Texas. Bell and Add lived in Houston and it is believed that their children still live there also. Lillian m. a Bartle.. All of these children were b. in Alabama, acc. to Alex, near where Susan was born. However, the Compiler was unable to find any other Boswells in the Census Records he searched but they could have been living in another county and listed in another Volume.

There were times during their early married life that Susan and other women and children were taken to Fort Graham, across the Brazos River from Kopperl, for protection against Indian raids, acc. to Elmer (D16).

Claude (D22), recalls a trip to Texas, by his father, to visit Thomas and Susan in 1900. Also Thomas and his daughter, Jessie, visited Claude while he lived at Spiro, Oklahoma in 1918.

The property in Bosque County was purchased with the girls' money and Susan's sisters lived with her and Thomas until they married. The property was sold in 1900 when they moved to Memphis, Texas, and each of the girls was paid her share at the time of the sale. The farm consisted of three separate fields of about 20 acres each, which were separated by small creeks that ran down from the mountains. All of these fields were fenced with cedar rails of the "Stake and Rider" type. Part of the rails were cut and split by Thomas after the farm was bought. Before the farm was sold in 1900 part of the old "stake and rider" fences had been torn down and used for posts for a barbed wire fence and those not used for this purpose were sold. A few years after the farm was sold it was entirely fenced with barbed wire.

Thomas always said that he was Scotch-Irish and believed that he was distantly related to Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederate States, but the Compiler has been unable to prove or disprove that point at this time. Susan said she was of English ancestry.

Thomas and Susan moved to Memphis, Texas in 1900 and lived there until the time of Susan's death except for a few years that they lived in Hedley, Texas.

After Thomas' second marriage he spent his remaining years in Aransas Pass, Texas. Louise d. Aransas Pass, Texas, October 1934.

She continued this work after the war, doing alterations and tailoring for men's stores and tailor shops and for a period of time operated her own alteration shop in Amarillo. D8. WILLIAM T. or DOCTOR², s. of George W. (D1), b. Bloomer, Arkansas, January 14, 1867; d. Bloomer, Arkansas, July 30, 1904; m. Turah Ward, b. Bloomer, Arkansas, January 1, 1872, dau. of John H. and Lucilla (Floyd) Ward. William went to Texas several times before and immediately after his marriage to visit his half-brother, Thomas. William's son Claude (D22), recalls his father talking of one of the visits he made in 1900. Acc. to Alex (D14), William went to Texas in the early 1890's and stayed with Thomas for about two years, and then returned to Arkansas. During this stay in Texas he worked in a cotton gin and in the fall of 1893 William, Thomas and Alex attended the Dallas, Texas Fair.

It is interesting to note that the 1870 Census Record listed William T. as "Doctor", age 3. Alex recalls his father saying that his half-brother, William, named himself after he got up in years and his original name was "Dock".

After his marriage William and his family lived in the Oklahoma Territory for approximately four years on free grazing land, where he started with a small heard of cattle, which at the end of that time had increased considerably. He sold his cattle and returned to Bloomer, where he engaged in the mercantile business. He had a large store there and several "peddling wagons", which were also used to pick up merchandise in Fort Smith for his store in Bloomer. During the time of their stay in the Oklahoma Territory, Turah recalls that living conditions were "rough" even for those days, and their neighbors were Indians mostly and were considered civilized, but would go on wild drinking parties and cause considerable trouble. At times William would give them a supply of meat to keep peace.

The following is a copy of an obituary furnished by Mrs. Allie Vinson (D13):

"Mr. W. T. Davis, of Bloomer, died at 12 o'clock

Saturday, July 30, typhoid fever was the fatal symptom that called a devoted husband and loving father away from his loved ones. He leaves a widow and three children to morn his death.

Mr Davis was well and favorably known, having been born in Bloomer some 37 years ago - he was the only son and living member of George Davis' (deceased) family. He was engaged in the general mercantile business at the time of his death.

We feel sad and despondent over the departure of our late friend.

The subject of this sketch was an honest, hard-working and accomodating gentleman. If he ever dah an enemy in this world of cares and troubles, the writer never knew it. Ah, it is, indeed, so sad to think that a good man has been called from our midst, but such is life.

Mr. Davis was a member in good standing of the Woodmen of the World and his remains were placed to rest in the Morris Graveyard.

Turah continued her husband's business for a few years but later she sold it and purchased a farm. She and the children continued to live in the home in Bloomer. Many years after the children married she sold the properties and moved to Hawthorne, California, where she resides with her daughter, Sula F, Sands (D23), at 3512 West 133rd Street.

THIRD GENERATION

D14. DAVID ALEXANDER³, s. of Thomas (D3), b. Kopperl, Texas, May 22, 1881; m. Kopperl, Texas, July 17, 1901, Winnie E. Vinson (V7), Chapter IX. Alex recalls that his first experience in a cotton gin was in the early 1890's (prob. 1893) when his uncle, William T. (D6), came to Texas and got a job in a gin running the press at 50¢ per bale and gave Alex 10¢ per bale for helping him. Cotton gins are quite different now than in those days. Cotton was carried from the wagon to the gin "stands". The lint room and the press were separate and the lint was carried to the press and tromped by feet into it; the bale was pressed with a screw block. The ginning price was taken out of the wagon by one basket full for each five ginned. In those days the cotton seed was either burned or dumped into the creek if the farmer did not want to take it home. The capacity of this gin was ten to twelve bales a day from daylight to dark. No night ginning was allowed because lights were not permitted as lanterns or coal oil lamps were the only kind of lights in use at that time. This is indeed a far cry from the present day cotton gins with their numerous "stands", hydraulic presses, methods of sterilization of cotton seed, electrical lighting and literally hundreds of other improvements. Cotton gins run around the clock to turn out from four to six bales per hour now.

Alex and Winnie were childhood playmates and school sweethearts. Alex was employed as a telegraph operator for the Texas Central Railroad at Fowler, Texas near Kopperl at the time of their marriage, but he left there and moved to Memphis, Texas where they farmed for a few years. Later they returned to Fowler and Alex returned to work for the rail road. He worked for several railroads in various sections of Texas for 21 years and later moved

LOVEJOY.

FIRST GENERATION*

*(For a complete genealogical record of the Lovejoy Family the reader is referred to Major Clarence Earle Lovejoy's LOVEJOY GENEALOGY in which he traces the family record from the date of the publication of his book in 1930 to England in the 1500's. Copies of Major Lovejoy's book may be found in numerous State and National Libraries in the United States as well as in England. According to Major Lovejoy, William is of the sixth generation of Lovejoys in the United States. The numerical value ⁽¹⁾ placed after each name is based on the search made by this Compiler and not Major Lovejoy's search).

The Compiler of this record searched official records and contacted numerous people during his assignment with the Air Transport Command in Manchester, New Hampshire in 1944-46. The following is records and information most of which was gathered at that time.

11. WILLIAM LOVEJOY¹, b. Vassalboro, Maine, October 28, 1788; d. California, 1850; m. Sophia Thatcher. According to William's grand-daughter, Mrs. Eva L. (Upham) Mills (now deceased) of North Dunbarton, New Hampshire and Rev. Fitzpatrick of Belmont, New Hampshire, William went to California after he lost his saw mill when a dam broke on the Kennebec River in Maine. The logs were in the river awaiting to be floated down to the saw mill when the dam broke. All the logs were washed out to sea and lost. He had borrowed thousands of dollars and had invested all of that as well as all of his own money to buy the logs and lost all that he had. He went to California in the hope that he could make money to pay back the loans. He died a very short time (a few months) after arriving in California. He was accompanied on the trip around Cape Horn by one of his sons, Kimball P., who also died in California and was completely blind at the time of his death. William's wife, Sophia (Thatcher) lived with her daughter, Mrs. Anna L. T. Upham after he went to California and part of the time she lived with her oldest daughter, Mrs. Sophie Thatcher Wentworth, in Waterville, Maine. Sophia died at Bridgewater, Maine and was buried in South Deerfield, Massachusetts where another of her daughters, Mrs. Lettie Arms was living at that time.

Mrs. Mills furnished a copy of a letter that William wrote to his wife upon his arrival in San Francisco, which is as follows:

March 31, 1850
San Francisco, Calif.

Dear Wife:

I take this opportunity to inform you of my good health and Kimball's and hope that these lines will find you and all of the family enjoying the best of Heaven's Blessings. We arrived here on the 29th of this month, say day before yesterday. I went ashore in order to get some work but could not get any at the present. I met with Edward Davis. He had just came down from Sacramento City. He is living there and doing well. Kimball went up with him and paid his passage which was $25. I calculate to go up there as soon as I can earn money enough to carry me up there which is $25. I do not know whether I shall go to the mines or not. If I can get employment I shall stay where Kimball is gone. Edward Davis says he will do all he can to get us employment. I should have written some on our passage but I lost my specks which deprived me of writing. There is such confusion on board that it is almost impossible to write a sentence.

Tell James we will send some money as soon as we can earn some money. I wish that it were in my power to express my feelings respecting our living on board the boat. We lived as mean as it was in the power of the Captain and the owners to do. Lumber is down to the lowest degree. There is such a surplus that there is no sale for it. Good pine boards are selling for $30 per M. The market is overstocked with every thing but vegetables. Potatoes are worth 16¢ a lb., and onions are 55¢ a lb., and eggs are $1.50 a doz. and everything is in that proportion. I have not got a letter from any of my friends as I expected I should when I arrived here. I should be glad to see you all. Tell Lewis and Peter to be good boys and tell the truth in everything. Tell them I want them to go to meeting every Sabbath and not spend their time playing in the Sabbath and try to behave like good boys. Tell Amelia and Lettie that I long to see them and they must learn their books and be good girls. I do not think it worth while to particularize you all as I respect and love you all. I am lost to know what to write. I have kept a journal every since I left the Kennebec River. I should like to send it home but the postage would be so much that I think it best not to. I went on shore yesterday and went all over the city. It is the most dirty and filthy city I was ever in. It is just like the speculation of 36 and 37. I could not advise anyone to come here, knowing what I know now. I think that if anyone can get a living at home they had better stay there. Perhaps I shall alter my opinion a month from this. I shall stay in this country until I get some money so that I can help myself and family. The hills look like June here. It is a good country set aside the mining. I do not want that you should worry about me for I think that I can take care of myself as long as my health is as good as it is now. I want James to go to the Augusta Masonic Lodge and get the candlesticks that I lent Elisha Hallet. One I give to Sophia, and one to Anna, one to Amelia. I shall enclose an order in this letter for you to get the candlesticks. I shall fill the letter out but in the course of 15 or 20 minutes the boat is going ashore and I shall not be able to write much now.

N. B.

I have not taken a pinch of snuff since I left the Kennebec River. When you send my letters direct them to Sacramento, California. This is 110 miles above San Francisco. I was very much disappointed for not finding a letter for me so was Kimball.

California: As soon as I get established I shall send Herman (Hiram) Lovejoy, and Edwin, George and Sewell etc. money. James may depend on some money as soon as I get it. Tell the boys not to use any profane language for I have heard enough to sink the whole earth since I came on board the vessel. The steamer leaves for Penny, Maine tomorrow and all letters must be put in the office today for there will not be any chance for a month and arrives once a month, I shall just say that we have not had more than one half of the time more than one half to eat since we left the Kennebec River!!

William and Sophia had ten children.

L2. SOPHIA THATCHER², b. February 19, 1814.

SECOND GENERATION

L4. JAMES THATCHER², s. of William (L1), b. Sidney, Maine, June 23, 1818; d. Memphis, Texas, June 9, 1912; m. (1) Sidney, Maine, October 24, 1860, Nellie M. Baker; m. (2), Graham, Texas, December 29, 1881, Ella McLeoud (M9), Chapter XI. James lived in New Bedford, Massachusetts before his first marriage. Mr. William H. Tripp, Curator, Old Dartmouth Historical Society and Whaling Museum of New Bedford, furnished the following:

"I find in our City Directory of 1859 Mr. James T. Lovejoy is listed as a hackman in the employ of Joshua Gibbs 3rd, and he boarded at 67 Fourth Street. Joshua Gibbs 3rd, is listed as operating a livery stable and his home was 67 Fourth Street, so it would seem that Mr. Lovejoy boarded at Mr.

Gibbs' home. No City Directories were published during the Civil War- the first one after 1859 being 1865. Mr. Lovejoy is not listed in that year nor in several directories of later years. Apparently he moved from New Bedford."

Also according to the City Clerk, Mr. Charles W. Deasy, New Bedford, who furnished the following:

".....a search was made of the records of this office. The only bit of pertinent information disclosed was the birth record of one Elizabeth Gibbs Lovejoy, daughter of James T. Lovejoy and Nellie M. Baker, a copy of which is enclosed. No further data - either marriage or death records- could be found relative to these three persons...."

Elizabeth Gibbs Lovejoy is recorded in Volume 3, page 1, number 13 in the records in the City Clerk's Office.

While residing in New Bedford and prior to his departure James secured several letters of recommendations to General Ben F. Butler, in charge of Government Forces at New Orleans, Louisiana, which would indicate that his acquaintance with General Butler was not very close, as noted in the following article from the Memphis, Texas HERALD, or the letters would not have been necessary. There is also one addressed to General Ether Shepley, who served with General Butler in New Orleans. One letter is from Mr. T. D. Eliot whose position and occupation is unknown; one from Jno. P. Barker, dated October 18, 1862, signed "Cashier of Marine Bank and one of the board of Aldermen of the City of New Bedford"; another from Geo. Homana (?) Jr. dated October 18, 1862, signed "Mayor of New Bedford". The one addressed to General Shepley is dated October 28, 1863 and signed C. B. H. Pesseudeu "Sh'ff of Bristol County", (New Bedford is in Bristol County).

The following is an article from the Memphis, Texas HERALD dated Saturday, June 24, 1899 which outlines James' life to that time:

"On Friday our well known and popular livery-man, J. T. Lovejoy, passed his 81st mile post in his career. As a businessman, in possession of all his faculties, and every day in active business life, he is certainly a man of remarkable vitality. Not less remarkable has been his life which has been one of active and constant push and progress. He was born on June 23, 1818, the son of William Lovejoy, a sterling old New Englander, at Lovejoy's Ferry, on the Kennebec River, four miles above Augusta, Maine. In his younger years he was engaged with his father in lumbering in the forests of Maine. After growing to manhood he moved to New Bedford, Massachusetts, where he engaged in the livery business. In 1850 his father went to California to hunt gold and one year later died in that state, without ever attaining the object of his search.

In attending school in New England, young Lovejoy had formed the acquaintance of General B. F. Butler, who was an older member of the same school. After the breaking out of the war, and while General Butler was in charge of Government forces in New Orleans, Lovejoy sold out his livery business in New Bedford and invested the proceeds in supplies, such as would find ready sale in New Orleans, and loading a boat, he set out for that port. On reaching there he was able to dispose of cargo at a very handsome figure. He then bought cotton and shipped north and soon had a neat fortune laid by. However, he continued to buy cotton and shipped, and just before the war closed he purchased a large lot, paying for some as high as $1.00 a pound. The war coming suddenly to a close the price fell at once to 50 cents and less per pound and in this way Lovejoy lost more than $25,000. This left him practically without funds and he shipped for Indianola, Texas at the close of the war, landing there without anything. He then drifted up into the Trinity River bottoms in Leon County, where he managed a large plantation for an old acquaintance, and tried to regain his fortune, but overflows came and hard luck pursued him, so that he got away from there with nothing.

In the year 1868, he went to Waco (Texas) where he worked several months carpentering at $1.00 a day, but tiring of this he applied for the position of city marshal of the town and was appointed. During this time he was unfortunate to be compelled to kill a man; but he was promptly acquitted before the courts, Hon. George Clark and other prominent attorneys volunteering his defence for nothing. After leaving Waco Mr. Lovejoy went to San Antonio and got a bunch of horses for the Government and took them to Fort Griffin, then the frontier post on the Indian Border. For several years thereafter he acted as post sutler and supply contractor and gradually accumulated a snug sum, which he invested in lands, but most of which has since gradually slipped away.

He married some eighteen years ago to Miss Ella McCloud. Two children, a boy and a girl bless that union and now help to comfort them in their old age. Several years ago Mr. Lovejoy and his family moved to Hall County and engaged in the livery business and he is still actively employed every day in the week in the management of his business. He is strong and healthy, and of sociable disposition, mixes well with the people and always makes friends where ever his lot may be cast. The HERALD congratulates him on the occasion of his eighty-first birthday and hopes that he may be spared many more, as indications now point that he will."

In a search of the 9th Census, 1870, Volume 14, McLennen County, Waco, Texas, June 28, 1870, Page 44, Listing 305 shows Mr. James T. Lovejoy, age 52, occupation, City Marshal, personal property of $200, born in Maine. In addition to the above there is an invitation from "The Officers of the U. S. Army stationed at Waco, Texas, present their compliments and would be pleased to see Mr. James T. Lovejoy at Lusk's Building on Tuesday, January 4th, 1870, at 8 p. m., Dancing."
